Let's Start!

Planning a trip to Lesotho!

Learning Outcome

Understand detailed descriptions of real or imaginary events and experiences in present, past or future and in spoken or written texts.

Ask your partner:

- What do you need to bring when you travel to a foreign country?
- What is the farthest place you've ever visited?

Can Do Statements

- I can talk about social issues and moral dilemmas.
- I can talk about under what conditions or for what purpose something is done.
- I can express what is and isn't necessary.

Let's Explore!

Don't forget your passport*!

* "Don't Forget Your Passport" was a popular Canadian travel show.

Instructions: Read the text aloud.

- Vanessa: What's this I hear about you traveling to Lesotho?
- Amy: It's true, provided that I can get all my travel documents in order, I'll be leaving at the end of the month.
- Vanessa: What prompted you to make such a life-altering decision?
- Amy: Well, after a great deal of soul-searching I decided that I'm just not cut out for this behind the scenes stuff. I have to be in the trenches, you know?
- Vanessa: What will you do there?
- Amy: I'm going so that I can lend a hand. It's that simple.
- Vanessa: But you don't have to go all the way to Lesotho to do that. You're definitely lending a hand, whether you do it from home or abroad.
- Amy: That's true, but in order that the project is completed on time we need people on the ground. I think that I have the ability to convey a sense of urgency to the project managers. It's a matter of life and death, after all.
- Vanessa: As always your passion is really inspiring, Amy.
- Amy: It's really become a pet project of mine. More than that, even, I feel like it's something I must do.
- Vanessa: Is there anything you've got to do to prepare?
- Amy: Yeah, I've got to renew my passport, and if I want to cross over into South Africa, I'll have to get a special visa.
- Vanessa: Not to mention shots and pills, lest you catch malaria or something.
- Amy: Of course, I mustn't leave anything to chance.

Let's Practice!

Amy considers it better if people volunteer on the ground.

Instructions: Underline all the conjunctions in the sentences. Read the sentences aloud. Check your pronunciation with your instructor.

1. Provided that I can get all my travel documents in order, I will be leaving at the end of the month.
2. I'm going so that I can lend a hand.

Learning Points

Adverb Clauses of Condition and Purpose

You use adverb clauses introduced with conjunctions to explain the purpose of or to add a condition to an action.

Look at the chart for a summary of these two types of adverb clause and the conjunctions that introduce them:

Adverb Clause	Conjunctions	Examples
Explaining purpose	that so that so in order that lest	In order that the project is completed on time we need people on the ground.
Adding a condition	if whether provided that unless	Provided that I can get all my travel documents in order, I will be leaving at the end of the month.

Examples:

- We're working evenings so that we finish on time.
- Unless the order comes soon, we won't have enough stock to sell.

Learning Points

Modals of Necessity: Must/Have to/Have got to

You use the modals must, have to and have got to to talk about necessity.

Must is the strongest of these three modal verbs. It is most common in writing and rarely used in questions. You can use it to talk about the present and the future.

For example:

I feel like it's something I must do.

Have got to is the most common in casual conversations. It is not used in questions. You use it to talk about present and future obligations.

For example:

Is there anything you've got to do to prepare?

Have to is the most common. You use it to form questions and negatives. You can use it on all tenses (past, present and future).

For example:

I have to be in the trenches, you know?

Examples:

- You don't have to go all the way to Lesotho to do that.
- I mustn't leave anything to chance.
