

Instructor: Date:

Learner: Regional Branch:

Program: Center:

CONTENT

- Let's Start! • Let's Explore! • Let's Practice! • Extension Activity • Target Words • Learning Points

Let's Start!

Amy checks in from Lesotho!

Learning Outcome

Describe necessity, duty, advice, or strong disapproval in written and spoken situations according to work and social contexts.

Ask your partner:

- Do you know anything about the country of Lesotho?
- If you were taking a trip to Lesotho, what would you bring?

Can Do Statements

- I can talk about social issues and moral dilemmas.
- I can talk about having or getting something done.
- I can express what is not necessary.

Let's Explore!

Amy writes a report on the fly.

* If you do something "on the fly" then you do it in a hurry and with little preparation.

Instructions: Read the text aloud.

Dear Candice,

As requested, here is a short progress report from our home base here in Lesotho. We've been going at a breakneck pace. In fact, I'm scribbling this missive on a piece of paper on a bus. I'll have one of our aides type it up and send it to you later this afternoon. We've had a few small setbacks. The groundbreaking ceremony for the medical center was supposed to have occurred on Saturday. There was a torrential rain; the site was a bit soggy, so we moved it to the following Tuesday. We didn't have to postpone, but we thought it wise under the circumstances.

Samuel was really instrumental in making it a success. He got the workers to completely drain the site so that we could set up some chairs for the press. We really needn't worry about the future of the projects with him around! The pictures appeared in the local paper the next day, and hopefully we generated a little awareness and goodwill within the community. I'll have them included in the package so that we can use them in our fundraising efforts back home.

After the launch, Samuel and I had the driver take us to two different foster homes. What a heartwarming experience! The children don't have a lot of modern amenities, but they make due with their limited resources. It just goes to show you that we don't have to have all of our modern toys and technologies in order to find a bit of contentment.

Well, I don't have to tell you that time flies around here, so I'll say goodbye for now.

Thank you for giving me the opportunity to live my values!

Amy Watson

Let's Practice!

Amy talks about what isn't necessary in life.

Instructions: Underline the mistake in the sentence. Write the correct one below. Read the sentences aloud. Check your pronunciation with your instructor.

1. We didn't had to postpone, but we thought it was wise under the circumstances.
2. We really needn't worried about the future of the projects with him around!
3. It just goes to show you that we don't need to having all of our modern toys and technologies in order to find a bit of contentment.
4. I not have to tell you that time flies around here.
5. The children don't needed the latest gadgets all the time.

Let's Practice!

Amy finds the right words to write to Candice.

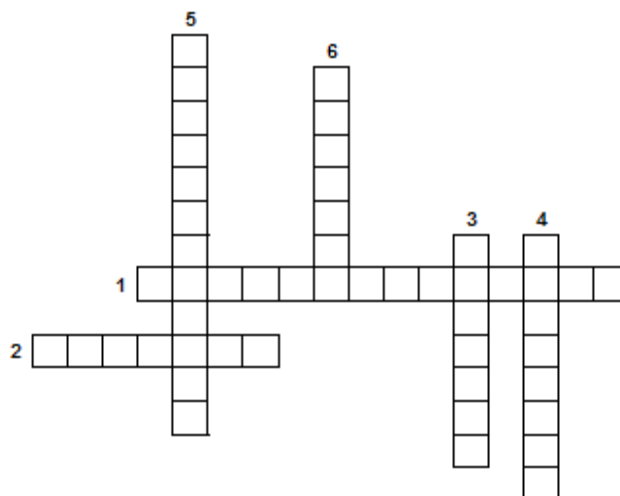

Instructions: Read the clues. Write the words in the corresponding boxes to correctly complete the crossword.

Down

3. Something that causes a delay.
4. Friendly or positive feelings.
5. Describing feelings of kindness or happiness.
6. To get along with what is available.

Across

1. A written document that explains the state of a project.
2. An official letter.

Extension Activity

Write a progress report.

Instructions: Complete the following steps. Fill in the Self-Assessment.

- Imagine that you are on a humanitarian mission in the country of your choice.
- Write a list of at least three projects that you would like to complete in your chosen country.
- Write a mock progress report outlining the status of each one of your projects.

Self-Assessment

Yes

No

I create three humanitarian projects.

☐ ☐

I write a progress report.

☐ ☐

I add vocabulary common on a humanitarian trip.

☐ ☐

Target Words

- progress report (noun): a written document that explains the state of a project
e.g. As requested, here is a short progress report from our home base here in Lesotho.
- missive (noun): an official letter e.g. In fact, I'm scribbling this missive on a piece of paper on a bus.
- setback (noun): something that causes a delay
e.g. We've had a few small setbacks.
- groundbreaking ceremony (noun): an event to mark the official start of a building project
e.g. The groundbreaking ceremony for the medical center was supposed to have occurred on Saturday.
- goodwill (noun): friendly or positive feelings e.g. Hopefully we generated a little awareness and goodwill within the community.
- heartwarming (adjective): describing feelings of kindness or happiness e.g. What a heartwarming experience!
- to make due (expression): to get along with what is available e.g. The children don't have a lot of modern amenities, but they make due with their limited resources.

Learning Points

Causative Verbs: Get and Have

You use the causative verbs get and have when you talk about arranging for someone to do something for you.

Look at the following examples:

I cleaned my room. (Meaning: I cleaned it myself).

If you paid or asked someone to do something, you can say:
(A cleaner) cleaned my room.

You can use another way (a causative construction):
I had my room cleaned.

You can also use the structure subject + have + person + verb to identify who did the action.

For example:

I had the plumber fix my sink.

The director had the employees prepare a book report.

You use the structures get + object + past participle (get something done) or get + person + to + verb (get someone to do something).

The causative verbs get and have are the same. Sometimes, get has the feeling that you needed to convince someone to do something, while have is more neutral.

Examples:

- He got the local chiefs and politicians to rearrange their schedules so that they could attend.
- He had the workers completely drain the site so that we could set up some chairs for the press.
- Samuel and I had the driver take us to two different foster homes.

Learning Points

Absence of Necessity

You use don't have to and don't need to to talk about absence of necessity, when something is unnecessary.

Look at the examples:

I don't have to go to work today. It is Sunday.

He didn't have to work yesterday, so he came to the movies with us.

I don't need to go to the store today. We have enough groceries.

We don't need to wash the car - it's clean.

In the examples above, need is the main verb. Sometimes need in the negative is used as a modal verb (needn't).

For example:

She needn't worry. Everything is OK.

You needn't shout. I can hear you.

Examples:

- We didn't have to postpone, but we thought it wise under the circumstances.
- We really needn't worry about the future of the projects with him around!
- It just goes to show you that we don't need to have all of our modern toys and technologies in order to find a bit of contentment.
- I don't have to tell you that time flies around here.

