

Instructor: Date:

Learner: Regional Branch:

Program: Center:

CONTENT

- Let's Start! • Let's Explore! • Let's Practice! • Extension Activity • Target Words • Learning Points

Let's Start!

Let's review!

Learning Outcome

Understand detailed descriptions of real or imaginary events and experiences in present, past or future and in spoken or written texts.

Ask your partner:

- When was the last time you had to travel for work or school?
- What advice would you give someone who is starting a new job?

Can Do Statements

- I can express what is and isn't necessary.
- I can talk about under what conditions or for what purpose something is done.
- I can talk about having or getting something done.

Let's Explore!

Amy reminisces about her trip.

* To "reminisce" means to remember.

Instructions: Read the text aloud.

- Candice: We don't have to do this debriefing session right now, Amy. You just got back for crying out loud! You need to pace yourself.
- Amy: I know, but I really want to do it right away so that I don't forget anything.
- Candice: Alright, but we don't need to go into too much detail. I'll just get you to print up a full progress report next week, when you're less exhausted. So, what were your impressions?
- Amy: What a life-altering experience! It's been a real eye-opener. I really must get the photos printed up so I can show you. It's an impoverished country, to be sure. The AIDS pandemic has really devastated the local community. Yet the orphans are so grateful for everything they have.
- Candice: I know, it's so sad. It really helps us to stay motivated in our fundraising efforts here at home. So how much progress has been made on the medical center?
- Amy: It will be finished on time provided that local conditions cooperate. I'll have Samuel send you the updated budget.
- Candice: Well, unless there's some unforeseen disaster, I expect it will be done within the next year, which is fantastic.
- Amy: Right. We will have to do our part, of course. We must continue to host benefits and crowdfunding campaigns so that the initiatives continue to be well-funded.
- Candice: If they continue to do their part in Lesotho, we will continue to do our part here at home. That's our commitment to them. Is there anything else?
- Amy: Just some minor details. One of the buildings at the foster home will have to be repaired, and Samuel will need to get ...
- Candice: We can have that kind of stuff taken care of next week. Now take the afternoon off, I insist!

Let's Practice!

Amy and Candice are getting very excited talking about the program.

Instructions: Cross out the incorrect words in the sentences. Rewrite the sentences correctly below. Read them aloud. Check your pronunciation with your instructor.

1. I'll just get you to printing up a full progress report next week, when you're less exhausted.

2. I really must get the photos printed so I can showed you.

3. I'll have Samuel sent you the updated budget.

4. One of the buildings at the foster home will have to be repair.

5. We can have that kind of stuff take care of next week.

Let's Practice!

Amy and Candice talk about what needs and doesn't need to be done in the program.

Instructions: Read the sentences. Fill in the gaps with the corresponding options from the word bank to correctly complete the sentences. Model a conversation using the sentences with a partner. Switch roles.

Word Bank

really must get/ don't need to go into/ don't have to do/will have to do our part/ and need to pace.

1. We _____ this debriefing session right now, Amy.

2. You just got back for crying out loud! You _____ yourself.

3. We _____ too much detail. I'll just get you to print up a full progress report next week.

4. I _____ the photos printed up so I can show you how amazing the experience was.

5. We _____, of course.

Extension Activity

Convince someone to volunteer.

Instructions: Complete the following steps. Fill in the Self-Assessment.

- Brainstorm reasons stating why someone should volunteer.
- Make a list of reasons stating why someone would not want to volunteer.
- Using your ideas, try to convince your partner to volunteer. Your partner will resist using the second list.
- Switch roles.

Self-Assessment

Yes

No

I make a list of pros and cons to volunteering.

☐ ☐

I use social awareness and volunteer vocabulary.

☐ ☐

I practice my dialogue with a partner.

☐ ☐

Target Words

- progress report (noun): a written document that explains the state of a project
e.g. I'll just get you to print up a full progress report next week, when you're less exhausted.
- eye-opener (noun): something that surprises you and allows you to see things in a new way e.g. It's been a real eye-opener.
- impoverished (adjective): extremely poor
e.g. I really must get the photos printed up so I can show you. It's an impoverished country, to be sure.
- pandemic (noun): a disease that affects large numbers of people at the same time e.g. The AIDS pandemic has really devastated the local community.
- orphan (noun): a child whose parents have passed away
e.g. Yet the orphans are so grateful for everything they have.
- initiative (noun): a new plan or project
e.g. The initiatives need to be well-funded.
- to crowdfund (verb): to raise money for a project by getting a small donation from a large amount of people e.g. We must continue to host benefits and crowdfunding campaigns.

Learning Points

Expressing Necessity

You use a variety of modals to express necessity or obligation. Let's compare some of the most common ones:

Must vs. Have to

Must is stronger and more direct than have to. Must implies that the action is absolutely necessary. You use have to in less formal writing and in speaking.

You can use have to in all tenses to talk about the past, present and future, whereas must is only used to talk about the present.

They must prepare a report.

They have to prepare a report.

They had to prepare a report.

They will have to prepare a report.

Must vs. Should

You use must to talk about necessity in the present.

She must obey the rules.

You use should to give strong advice. You can use should instead of must when you want to be less direct in how you sound to others.

Compare:

You must do it today. (strong necessity, obligation)

You should do it today. (advice, recommendation)

Have got to vs. Have to / Need

You use have got to in more casual conversations. It is less formal than have to and need. You usually refer to a noun after the verb need (I need help).

Examples:

- We don't have to do this debriefing session right now, Amy.
- You need to pace yourself.
- Alright, but we don't need to go into too much detail.
- I really must get the photos printed up so I can show you.
- We will have to do our part, of course.

Learning Points

Adverb Clauses of Condition and Purpose

You use adverb clauses introduced with conjunctions to explain the purpose of or to add a condition to an action.

Adverb clauses can put a condition on an action. You use the conjunctions if, whether, provided that and unless to introduce the condition.

Adverb clauses can explain the reason or purpose of an action. You use the conjunctions that, so that, in order that and lest to introduce the clause.

Look at the chart for a summary of these two types of adverb clause and the conjunctions that introduce them.

Adverb Clause	Conjunctions	Examples
Explaining purpose	that so that so in order that lest	I really must get the photos printed up so I can show you. I know, but I really wanted to do it right away so that I don't forget anything.
Adding a condition	if whether provided that unless	It will be finished on time provided that local conditions cooperate. If they continue to do their part in Lesotho, we will continue to do our part here at home.

Examples:

- I know, but I really wanted to do it right away so that I don't forget anything.
- I really must get the photos printed up so I can show you.
- It will be finished on time provided that local conditions cooperate.
- Well, unless there's some unforeseen disaster, I expect it will be done within the next year, which is fantastic.

